

The Future Nation Pre-School children make their red envelopes.

Future Nation enjoys Chinese New Year

The Future Nation Pre-school in Lyndhurst took part in a special cultural lesson on 16 February when they celebrated the Chinese New Year.

Every child made a red envelope and learnt the art of writing Chinese characters with traditional paint brushes.

In China, the red envelope is called yasui qian, which means 'suppressing ghosts money'.

Those who receive a red envelope are wished another safe and peaceful year. The children also painted special patterns on paper plates for the beautiful new year dragon.

Spokesperson for the school Simóne Jacobs said, "The foundation phase at Future Nation Pre-Schools wishes everyone a Happy New Year and great luck in the Year of the Dog."
