WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT BURSARIES

Want to study further but don't have the funds to do so?

Don't fear!

Finding the right bursary for your tertiary studies is straightforward when you start with your career interests. Your first port of call is to check if the profession you're eyeing offers bursaries. It's like matching your dream job with a scholarship that says, "Hey, we've got you covered!"

If it doesn't, take a deep breathe. Because South Africa is a treasure trove of bursaries. Keep digging! There are plenty of opportunities out there (this also applies if you don't "strike gold" the first time). Be strategic with your approach and apply to as many companies as you can to skyrocket your chances of landing that perfect funding opportunity. If you hit the jackpot with more than one offer, you get to pick your favorite.

But, keep your eyes on the clock! Every bursary has its own timeline and set of hoops to jump through. Whether it's acing the NBT, gathering your paperwork or something else, make sure you start early. This way, you won't miss out because of a deadline sneak attack.

And remember: every bursary comes with its own rulebook. Knowing what's expected of you and what you'll get in return is crucial. Some might ask you to pay it forward by working with them for a bit after you graduate.

DELL YOUNG LEADERS

Michael & Susan Dell Foundation

The Dell Young Leaders programme helps students navigate through common barriers to graduation, offering support in the areas most needed to ensure they move on to a meaningful career. Students complete ample leadership and career training, overcoming their individual challenges to graduate from university and are matched with employer partners in their field of study where, as programme Alumni, they become leaders in their chosen professions.

Each year, qualifying first year financial aid students from the University of Cape Town, the University of Pretoria, and Stellenbosch University are invited to apply to the Dell Young Leaders programme.

Invites are sent during the second term from the university's financial aid office and directly from the programme via email.

Applications from students at other universities, or outside of those individuals invited to apply, are not accepted.

ISFAP

Ikusasa Student Financial Aid Programme

The Ikusasa Student Financial Aid Programme (ISFAP) caters for the higher education needs and costs of South Africa's poor and middle-class students. The programme aims to fast track South Africa's skills production for the 21st century by funding the higher education costs of mainly students studying towards a career in Occupations of High Demand (OHDs), which have been identified as critical to South Africa's economic development by the Human Resources Development Council (HRDC). These include Actuaries, Accountants, Engineers, Medical Doctors, Pharmacists and Prosthetists at 11 partner universities around the country.

ISFAP provides qualifying students with the full cost of studies including all tuition costs as well as accommodation and travel (if the student does not have accommodation), books, meals and a stipend (living allowance). In addition, ISFAP's partner universities provide students with academic support, social support, life skills training and medical support when required.

APPLICATIONS OPEN IN MAY.
